

POINTE MOUILLEE WATERFOWL FESTIVAL

Come and See

What Everyone is Talking About !

Pointe Mouillee

(pronounced "Point Moo-yay") is a spit of land that jets into Lake Erie near the mouth of the Huron River. Pointe Mouillee is one of the largest fresh water marsh restoration projects in the world—the result of a gigantic earth-moving/dike-building project. It consists of wetlands, diked marshes, and river bayous.

Pointe Mouillee Waterfowl Festival needs your help to preserve the Pointe Mouillee Marsh. By restoring and protecting the state's most critical waterfowl habitats and major hub in the Detroit River International Wildlife Refuge, we can inspire future generations to continue our mission. Together we can make a difference.
